The Mountain Man

Located in the mall between the Lowery Art Building and the Burris Classroom Building stands the rugged Mountain Man. This sculpture, which is the second largest free-standing wood sculpture in the world, stands eighteen feet tall and weighs six tons.

This five-hundred-years-old stump of cypress wood, retrieved from a swamp in eastern North Carolina, was sculptured by Mr. R.K. Harniman. Dr. A.O. Halderson of Charlotte, also known as "The Great A.O.", stood as the model during the Mountain Man's creation in the South Park Mall in Charlotte. As proof of his posing, Dr. Halderson's initials are carved in the belt buckle of the statue.

Harniman also sculptured the largest free-standing wood sculpture in the world, the statue of Sir Walter Raleigh, located in Mantoo, North Carolina.

The Mountain Man was presented as a gift to Wingate College in 1976 by Mr. and Mrs. Carroll M. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Cresful W. Horne, and Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Pryor, all of Marshville, North Carolina.

A miniature replica of the Mountain Man resides in the Holbrook Administration Building and features all his details, including a rifle he used to hold.

Unfortunately, because of the ravages of time and the weather, the Mountain Man has suffered a number of minor damages, such as premature rotting, frequent bird nesting, additional student-designed clothing, and sign posting.

In view of these facts, the Mountain Man still continues to elicit responses from new students and visitors alike arriving on our campus. Then as the school year progresses and the seasons change, students accept the presence of this massive wood sculpture as they pass him enroute to their classes or the student center. Many a time, a student sitting in a nearby classroom has permitted his mind and eyes to travel away from the class lecture and focus on the shoulders of the Mountain Man and contemplate his uniqueness on the Wingate College campus.

The rugged spirit of Wingate College is symbolized in the Mountain Man.

Clicking away throughout the night it works. Almost every moment of the day it affects you. It knows you and remembers you. It has your number. In practically every aspect of your life, the Computer Center has some input.

The two-year old micro data reality system located in the J. Herbert Bridges Business Building is the heart of the computer system.

Some eighteen terminals are spread across campus including two terminals located in the Ethel K. Smith Library, one at the Holbrook Administration Building, with the remaining fifteen located at the Bridges Business Building. The entire Computer Center, aided by the use of the terminals, is used for the administrative, instructional, and research needs of the college and surrounding community.

Paychecks, invoice bills, registration, mailing labels, alumni rush cards, and grades are all products of the computer system.

The computer system is used not only by computer science classes according to Dr. James Parrish, Director of the Computing Services. "With the expansion of the Computer Center in the past year, instructional capabilities are now accessible for all students." Thus the computer can be used for class or research projects.

In an effort to progress and improve the computer system of Wingate College, the Computer Users Advisory Group, cuag, sent out surveys to all the students, faculty, and administration concerning the expansion of the Apple I micro-computer housed in the Teacher Material Center of the Library, the microdata minicomputer (main computing system), Hardware Acquisitions (Printers, Terminals, etc.), Software acquisitions (tutorials, drills, data base management programs, etc.) and seminars or additional courses.

The group feels that it should serve as an advisory group to the computing center staff. It has sent out bulletins to promote communication among the computing community and to provide instruction to the users of the computer.

At present, Wingate College offers two types of computer classes; for the business-oriented students BASIC language is taught, and for the scientific — oriented student the College offers Fortran. Aside from the regular computer classes, the Computer Center held lecture/demonstrations for nearly two hundred fourth and fifth grade students from surrounding elementary schools in the area. These students were introduced to the basic concepts of computing, as well as were taught what computers can and cannot do.

The Computer Center will be providing a summer computer camp for middle school aged children who would like to spend a week learning, playing, and experimenting with computers.

"Many people profit from the Computer Center," said Dr. Kenneth Parrish, "whether directly or indirectly. Usage of the computer has grown and is continuing to grow. People are able to do more faster."

The future of the Computer Center is bright. With the installation of the terminals in the business department and the new updated documents received thorough Triangle University Computing Center, TUCC, Parrish says the ability of the Computer Center to serve the students and the college is growing.

So next time you receive a bill or an invoice or your grades ... remember! He's got your number!

The Jets

The Jets, from Virginia Beach, entertained the Wingate students to conclude the 1981 Fall Festival. Prior to the Wingate concert, the band had been together for six months. The group originated in Norfolk, Virginia. They usually perform the local circuit which includes Virginia Beach, Nags Head, and other Virginia and northern North Carolina areas. Wingate was the farthest south they had performed up until that time.

Female vocalist, Mary Kohrherr, said, "We perform a lot of Bruce Springsteen and Pat Benetar because we feel that they are the top male and female vocalists of this time." She went on to say that they also play their own style because that will make them successful in the music field.

The other members of the band include Eddie Berman, lead guitarist; Randy Williford, bass guitar; Tom Stanley, keyboards; Bobby "Wildman" Lee, drums; and Richie Ackerman, sound technician.

The Jets were really pleased with the audience participation. They commented, "We could have played all night."

On September 3, 1981, students, administrative personnel, and faculty members of Wingate College came together in Austin Auditorium for the official opening of the academic year. Fall convocation marked the beginning of the eighty-fifth year in the history of the college.

President Thomas Corts delivered the keynote address in which he encouraged both new and returning students to utilize their time wisely in their attempts to become better educated and to become better persons. He reminded students that "Nothing can transpire by way of an education if you don't want it to happen. You will not be a better person when you leave than when you came unless you want to be."

He then warned students of potential problems that could arise if they ineffectively spent their time or failed to discipline themselves in regard to new freedom and free time. Dr. Corts further advised students to have a healthy concern about themselves, the people around them, and in their Creator.

Preceding the address, President Corts awarded the Washington Manley Wingate Medallion along with a citation to Mr. Harry L. Dalton, a Charlotte, North Carolina businessman and retired chairman of the executive committee of American Credit Corporation.

Mr. Dalton, a member of Wingate College's Board of Overseers, has long displayed an interest in the fine arts. The Burnside-Dalton Fine Arts Building on campus bears his name along with that of the late J. Ed Burnside.

Following convocation, the Fine Arts faculty hosted a reception marking the opening exhibit of paintings given to the college by Mr. Dalton and his wife Mary. On display in the Burnside-Dalton art gallery were twenty art works including those of Leonard Baskin, Sallie Middleton, and Rudolph Hradel.

London Study Program

Wingate's East Campus: London England

London — a fast paced, complex, international city, became "Home Away From Home" for eighteen Wingate College students and one professor during fall semester. The Wingate in London program, a new extension of the college's Winternational program, enriched the school's curriculum while it provided an exciting educational and cultural experience for participating students. The program began when a trip committee of faculty was formed to look into overseas study. The decision for London was made because of "Good contacts in London and no language requirements."

While an atmosphere of a close-knit family developed among students living in the hotel, most students, especially Kelly Towe, felt that "We learned to be independent — to do things on our own." In the old hotel students felt as if they were living in a frat house. The students slept two and three to a room.

Dr. Robert Billinger, a supervising professor, taught British History and Politics to the students while they also took courses in Ethics, Sociology, and Theatre through Spurgern College and the University of London.

A junior, Russell Jones, stressed that "Being in a city full of culture and tradition was a learning experience in itself." From seeing members of the Royal Family to seeing picture-postcard sights — all were rewarding and educational.

Highlights of the semester were the many excursions taken by the students to Edinburgh, Paris, West Germany, Berlin, Switzerland, and the English countryside.

The comic antics of the "Sutherland Players" (as the students dubbed themselves) and Eric McCall's Sumo-wrestler's impressions will long be remembered along with the sadder times of loneliness, empty mailboxes, and rain.

Even though the travel education abroad provided a cultural awareness for these students and greatly expanded their lives, many of them agreed with Katrina Little that "The trip made me appreciate America and the American way of life more."

Dr. Billinger stated, "Three months in London is just long enough to know that you don't know anything about London."

One of the most exciting and enjoyable aspects of going to college is living in a dorm. It is here that we renew old friendships, make new ones, and generally have a good time. For incoming freshmen, the first few weeks can be nothing short of bewilderment. At first glance into his new room, a typical freshman will say, "It's so small." As soon as one is settled in with a roommate, the redecorating ritual begins. A common question is, "How can I hide these walls?" Ice green cinder blocks are not very appealing.

Soon, however, the dorm rooms become transformed into comfortable homes, each as individual as its occupants. Our campus athletes decorate their walls with posters of sports stars while our auto enthusiasts paste their walls with everything from Corvettes, Cameros, and 280 Z's to Mercedes and everything in between. The gentlemen who are connoisseurs of fine women won't be happy without posters of Farrah, Toni Anderson, or Cheryl Ladd while the women prefer posters of Bucky Dent, John Schneider, or some other such macho man.

Pace

Granted, the room decorations are helpful, but the most important factor in making us feel at home is the people. Living with people we may never have met before can be quite an experience! At the onset, living with another may prove to be harrowing, but often lasting friendships are built this way. These friendships are special and unique to Wingate simply because its small size allows students to get to know or at least recognize almost everyone on campus. For freshmen, getting to know the people they live with is a new experience; however, for sophomores and juniors, it resembles a yearly ritual which is anticipated during the long summer. For seniors, it is equally important because for many of them, this will be their last experience in group living.

Just as the people who live in the dorms are unique, so are the dorms. Helms dorm seems to have been constructed for those of us who like to travel; however, it does benefit those who live there by making them the most exercised residents on campus. Bridges and Rushing are billed as the "Hiltons" of the campus. Certainly the luxury of air conditioning accounts for this. Their women counterparts are Tucker and Belk, both known for their remodeled lobby and courtyard where the bathing beauties flock every spring. Cannon dorm, which is soon to be remodeled, is where most freshmen women experience their first taste of dorm life. Alumni is the most staid dorm on campus, noted for its cozy lobby and paneled rooms. Finally, set back in a quiet corner of the campus, near the infirmary, are Hendricks, Bennet, and Holbert dorms. This area offers open surroundings ideal for horse-shoes, baseball, football, or "catching the rays" during springtime.

What helps to make dorm life more interesting and memorable are the small inconveniences we encounter throughout the semesters. Women simply detest the uninvited, four-legged guests who sometimes take up residence along with them. Likewise, waiting thirty minutes for the shower water to heat when it is 20 degrees outside can be a nuisance as can heaters that roast us or air conditioners that freeze us.

But, after all, crowded bathrooms, rooms painted by excamouflagers, and all the rest seem insignificant when we remember the good times during the year. Water fights, popcorn parties, gossip or bull sessions, and other activities relative to dorm life enable us to become more tolerant of the needs and rights of others and help to build memories of our "good old college days at Wingate."

Darkness backstage. Tripping over incongruous things like black cubes and craters. The heat of the lamps. The blinding eye of the spot obliterating the faces in the crowd. Cues. Mistakes. Cover-ups. The MACHINE.

A system — working cleanly, efficiently. Each is a part of the MACHINE. The whole cannot function without its parts. Each is as important as the next, though each is unique within itself. Such is the origin of the MACHINE.

We are the MACHINE. Cogs break, rust, when harsh words are spoken. A little oil and the MACHINE runs smoothly once again. We all know how important it is to get it all together. Plugged in and warming up, it's time for the MACHINE to test itself. Will it hold up under the lights? Almost time. So little time! It has sped away as if it is late for an appointment. It does have an appointment — 8:00 p.m. November 19, 20, 21.

Backstage there is much activity to relieve tension. Donnie and I waltz to the music of an imaginary orchestra while Carolyn Minor and Terri teach Kathi Sippin to shag. Diane checks to see if the light people are ready; Keith nervously winds and unwinds the musical teddy bear. Donald and Bert rehearse tricky lines. Jo becomes a prima ballerina before our very eyes. Suzan polices the wings to keep us quiet.

Fear comes. Jo has never danced before people. Will our wrinkles make us look old enough? Will they understand Diane when she talks with a rose in her teeth?

Last minute primping. A flurry of lines said for the last time without an audience. No more time for jitters. It is ... time!

Time flies.

Curtain call. Smooth. Nice. The MACHINE came through fine — just fine.

A Center Of Attraction

The Dickson-Palmer Center, known as the "rec" or "student center" is where it all happens on Wingate's campus. It is one of the few college structures to win the highest award presented by the North Carolina Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. The center houses a variety of activities, rooms and offices, including the mail center, student government offices, meeting rooms, yearbook and newspaper offices, reading or TV lounges, coffee shop, campus store, bowling, billiards, table tennis and game rooms.

Some come for recreation, to meet people, or to get away from their roommate for a while. Others come "to scope", to see everyone, or simply to waste cash.

Ms. Judy Childers, Director of Student Activities says, "It's a challenge that I love." One aspect Judy appreciates is the faculty coffee hour. One thing she would change is the TV room location and provide more open space for students. "Its biggest plus," she says "is that everyone cares and there is freedom to try new things in my work."

Known to all students (especially when buying books) are Ms. Marion Harrill and Ms. Cindy Jordan. Always willing to talk . . . and talk . . . and talk, they say, "We see everything and everybody here." Cindy says she has loved the one-and-a-half years she has been here simply "because of the people" and adds, "It's definitely not a dull job." One big change both suggest is perhaps a little more room so the bookstore would hold more students. The bookstore's busiest hours are from noon until 2:00. Next time you find yourself in the bookstore, notice how much "personality" is present.

Perhaps most popular to both students and faculty is the grill where you can get anything from a "Suicide" (a soft drink with everything in it) to a "Bulldog — all the way." Virginia McFaddeon says, "I love it . . . I've been here so long!" She loves meeting and talking with people. Her constant companionship with students leaves little time to be lonesome. The students' major complaint is the price of ice! The grill's busiest hours are from 9:00-10:30 pm.

No visit to the Student Center would be complete without stepping to the back and talking with a couple of employees at the desk along with some experts at "playing games." When asked, employee Glen Pridgen, a sophomore, enthusiastically says his favorite item at the center is the WOMEN! He spends four to five hours a day in the "rec", and the one thing he would like is more equipment. He loves working because "It is a great job."

Several students remarked on the relaxed atmosphere, the modern design, and most of all, the activities available. When asked what changes they would make, some said, "Free arcades" or "extended hours" and "a greater variety of games." All agreed we need a place for a little dancing with the jukebox. What seems to be the most popular games are Space Invaders and Asteroids, with pool and ping-pong running a close second.

During the first week of November, the American Red Cross came to Wingate College to hold its annual blood donors drive. It proved to be a very successful event. Over three hundred and fifty pints of blood were collected. This drive was made more exciting when a free steak dinner was offered as a prize to the hall with the greatest percentage of donors. This contest caused the amount of blood donated to be the highest in recent years. The winners of the steak dinner were Alumni second floor in the women's division and Bridges first floor in the men's. Congratulations to all who gave!

Take Your Time And Hurry!

Amidst the long lines and impatient people, registration for the spring semester succeeded in creating its usual chaotic atmosphere. Braving long lines and chilly temperatures, students entered Sanders-Sikes Gymnasium to finalize their second semester class schedules. Although a select few succeeded in getting their preferred schedules, most students knew the confusion of throwing together a schedule consisting of late classes and third choices. The quickness that the faculty exerted in handling the problems of individual students resulted in the completion of the most unwelcome event of the year.

Homecoming 1981

Homecoming weekend at Wingate College is always a special time. The 1981 festivities were no exception. Friday, October 2 saw FFATS golf and tennis tournaments and a 25th anniversary dinner for the class of 1956. The day was topped off with style with the annual Homecoming dance featuring the band, Bad Water, and the crowning of the 1981 Queen, Jill Traywick.

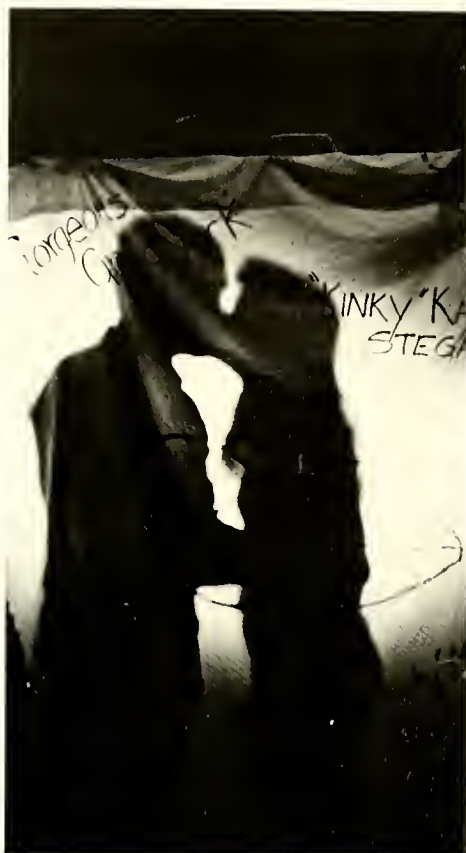

The festivities continued on Saturday, October 3 with class reunions, a barbeque on the grounds, a soccer game, pitting Wingate against Catawba, and finally, ending the 1981 Homecoming Festivities was a concert/dance with the Chairman of the Board.

Hallo-Wingate

On October 30, the night of Halloween Eve, when the goblins were preparing for their antics the following night, Wingate College held its Hallo-Wingate Carnival. The program was sponsored by the APB. The festivities got under way at 7:00 PM and didn't conclude until 9:00 PM. Among the activities were many booths. The Senior Class operated the Kissing booth, while the Junior Class threw pingpong balls through pumpkin's head. The Sophomore Class sponsored the dart-a-date game, and the Freshman Class put make-up on faces. Also included in the club booths was Go-to-Jail by the CSU. The Photography Club sponsored the pie throwing contest. Women's Dorm Council gave participants a chance to guess the objects in a jar. The "W" Club and the Black Awareness Club both sponsored a ring toss. The Pup Club offered one's fortune to be told by a fortune teller, while the Outing Club sponsored the basketball throw. Bobbing for apples was sponsored by the Literary Club. The journalism organizations also sponsored booths in the carnival. The Triangle, a non-profit organization, sold caricatures and donated the money to the Unicef Foundation. The Gate staff provided refreshments, as well as sponsored a booth where one could throw a baseball through a pumpkin's face. The sports organizations were represented by the baseball team selling candy bars.

At three times during the night all the children visiting were asked to meet in the center of the gym for the breaking of the piñata.

Following the carnival, the movie "Halloween" was shown in Laney Hall.

The following night, Halloween night, saw many of the strangest sights ever on Wingate's campus. This was the night of the Halloween dance. Providing music for the dance was Disco Pat and his Laser show. The students came dressed in sights ranging from human crayons to punk rockers, from grotesque monsters to beautiful fairy queens, from devils to angels — they all were there. The dance was held in the Sanders-Sikes Gymnasium and lasted from 8:00 PM until 12:00 PM.

Following the dance, the midnight movie, "When a Stranger Calls" was shown in the Austin Auditorium.

Madrigal Dinner

Madrigal Singing, brought to England from Italy in the 16th century, was at first an informal type of private entertainment at the castles and country homes of the landed gentry. Frequently, the lords and ladies performed the music themselves as they sat at dinner in the Great Hall. Naturally, there was much entertaining and singing of madrigals during the Twelve Days of the Christmas Season.

Madrigal songs are written for small groups with several voice parts skillfully combined so that each part is interesting and independent, both melodically and rhythmically. When sung, it provides the opportunity for a natural correspondence between words and music. The first madrigals were quite spontaneous. It wasn't until the late 16th century that they were published in written form.

Among the finest of old English customs is the Wassail Bowl. An interesting Medieval legend concerning the origin of the Wassail Bowl relates that at a Christmas dinner, a bowl of wine was presented the King with the words, "Lord King, Wass-Heil." (That is to say, "Be in Health.") Later it was the custom of the stewards, upon entering the banquet hall, to call, "Wassail, Wassail", and this was answered by host and guest alike with a song or carol.

Wingate's Madrigal Dinner is presented annually by the SGA and APB for the pleasure of all in the Christmas season. It is their hope that all will discover Christmas as celebrated in the ancient traditions of Merrie Olde England.

This year the Lord and Lady of the Manor were portrayed by Doss Phillips and Jill Traywick. Their festivities included a court juggler, the Grand Wizard, fencers, and Madrigal singers.

During the dinner, in which the main course was Boef Dissh Metes (steak), begging minstrels passed through singing and asking for money in return for their songs.

The dinner ended with the singing of Christmas songs by hosts and guests alike.

Winternational

Up — up — and — away! Fly the friendly skies and discover exciting lifestyles and cultures on the other side of the globe!

Two-hundred-and-seventy-four students, faculty, and friends of Wingate College responded to this innate call of adventure as they participated in Winternational '81. Even though this year's travel-educational experience marked the fourth year of Winternational participation for the college, it established many firsts in efforts aimed at enriching and expanding the program.

For the first time, London was not home base for all participating study groups, even though nine groups were housed there. Two study groups, taught by Mr. Don Brownlee and Mr.

Walter Woodson, chose Amsterdam, Holland as their home base. Dr. Robert Bodycombe's group traveled and studied in Geneva, Switzerland and surrounding countries, while the group of Mr. Dossie Phillips studied in Vienna, Austria. Ms. Helen Cowser and Ms. Lilia Montero focused their group's study upon Mayan culture and civilization in Merida, Yucatan, Mexico. The nine study groups sharing the London experience were led by Dr. Robert Doak, Dr. Keith Griffin, Dr. Don Merrill, Dr. Lonnie Nickles, Mr. Kenneth Pickerill, Dr. Larry Veenstra, Ms. Rachel Walker, Dr. Charles Yarbrough, and Mr. Lex Youngman.

Also, for the first time, many of the study groups arrived at their designated country via a KLM 747 Boeing Jetliner.

Prior to the actual travel in a chosen country, December 27, 1981 — January 6, 1982, students attended weekly seminars where they studied the culture and lifestyle of their chosen country plus academic topics relative to that geographical location.

This year's Winternational experience greatly expanded and enriched the lives of 211 sophomores with their expense being minimized to encompass their food and personal items.

Judging from student comments and observations and from faculty grades, Winternational '81 was tremendously successful and surely reduced the "size of the world" for those participating in the program.

Of course, Holland has windmills and wooden shoes! And Wingate College Winternational students can attest to this fact as well as to other facts regarding life and culture in Amsterdam because of their educational-travel experiences here.

Being greeted by a white landscape and icy breezes as their KLM 747 plane landed at Schipol Airport, students' first feelings were mixed and unsure.

But soon after getting settled in Amsterdam's Cok Hotel, modern in the midst of the Dutch architecture of old, and after exchanging American dollars for Dutch guilders, students were more than ready to discover Amsterdam.

And discover they did! A canal trip by boat presented a unique first look at the city, including a small number of her one hundred canals and one thousand bridges.

Later, a bus tour enabled students to absorb the history of the Anne Frank House, the splendor of the Coster Diamond Factory, and the classics of the Van Gogh Museum.

Other places discovered throughout the week included the Rijks Museum; the Stedelijk, a modern art museum; the Concert Hall Bagijnhof, a village for aging widows; and local churches, such as a Scottish Reform Church.

A trip to North Amsterdam highlighted the week as students visited the Delft earthenware factory, the Haag, the Peace Palace, and a wooden shoemaker's shop.

While in Amsterdam, students were intrigued with the open air market where items ranged from flowers to fish to toys at reasonable prices.

Of course, students also enjoyed nightly entertainment at their hotel's discotheque.

Along with the sights they saw, the people they met, and the experiences they had, Wingate students definitely developed an appreciation for the Dutch way of life in Amsterdam.

Geneva: Land Of Beauty

Geneva, Switzerland surely calls to mind the United Nations System, Lord Byron's "Prisoner of Chillon," the Notre Dame Cathedral, the breath-taking Alps, Swiss watches, tasty cheese and delicious chocolate.

Wingate's Winternational group, with a focus upon the United Nations System for economic development programs, traveled and studied in Geneva and surrounding areas where they encountered all of the above and much more as they were quartered in the French-speaking section of the city. Here students heavily relied upon "foot power" as they familiarized themselves with the area.

In contrast to "foot power," the Swiss Rail System provided an exciting means for students to visit nearby areas on a three-day train pass. Encompassing nearly three thousand miles, students traveled to Bern, the German-speaking city of Basel, the Italian-speaking city of Locarno, and Neuchâtel, where the famous Swiss chocolate Susshard is manufactured. Students were also fascinated with sightseeing and shopping in three of the five countries bordering Switzerland: France, Germany, and Italy. While in Mont Blanc, France, students excitedly rode the highest cablecar in Europe to the top of Mont Blanc (altitude 11,000 + ft.).

The beauty of the Swiss Alps will long linger in the minds of these students as will their association with people and lifestyles within this area.

Never a dull moment — shopping at Harrods, viewing the Crown Jewels, tapping a toe with the London Symphony, socializing at Dickens Inn, or simply enjoying a quiet walk through Hyde Park — Wingate College students easily slipped into the lively pace of bustling, international London!

Adjusting to small hotels and European breakfasts, students likewise soon felt at ease with the British language, currency, and underground transportation. They wasted no time in pursuing individual or group interests: country estates, Wimbledon, the London Exchange, Oxford University, the National Gallery or Windsor Castle — all the while hoping to catch a glimpse of the Queen.

Throughout the week, emotions traveled the gamut as students sought to capture enough experiences to yield a lifetime of memories. They worshiped quietly at St. Paul's Cathedral, thrilled to the National Theatre's production of "Amadeus," ushered in the new year at Trafalgar Square, photographed the pandas at the zoo, or stood solemnly at the site of the murder of Thomas A. Becket in Canterbury Cathedral.

From fish and chips at Mickey's to tea and crumpets at the Ritz, Wingate students "played" it all. From rubbing brass at Westminster Abbey to viewing the Elgin Marbles at the British Museum to disco dancing at the Empire, students absorbed British culture and lifestyle.

London at times awed and baffled students, intrigued and challenged them, but never for one moment — bored them!

Vienna, Austria

Vienna, Austria, the music capital of the world, famous for its opera house, St. Stephen's Cathedral, Vienna Boys Choir, and Lipizzan horses, proved to be a city of enchantment, rare beauty, beautiful music, and friendly people for Wingate's Winter international students traveling and studying here.

Musical highlights for this study group included performances of opera, operetta, oratoria, ballet, and the Vienna Boys Choir at Sunday Mass in the Vienna Imperial Chapel.

Since the city itself houses numerous architectural styles along with elegant palaces and apartments for royalty, students were daily enchanted with walking tours.

The modern part of Vienna is built around beautiful St. Stephen's Cathedral, which contains a bell tower from which visitors may view all of Vienna with the Swiss Alps in the horizon.

Since most of the Viennese speak only a small amount of English, Wingate students often had to resort to hand language, especially when ordering food in restaurants or making other purchases. Basic skills in the German language were indeed beneficial.

The group's day excursion to Bratislava, Czechoslovakia provided an educational and moving experience for students as they encountered fifteen-year-old armed guards along with streets and buildings less than glamorous. Upon entering the country, students could exchange $14.00 of American currency into the currency of Czechoslovakia. This total amount had to be spent in the area or returned to the government before departing the country.

Students will long remember the contrasts existing between Vienna and Bratislava as they reminisce about their experiences here as part of their continued education through cultural and global awareness.

Wingate College students who studied and traveled in Meridan, Yucatan, Mexico were intrigued with the area's culture and lifestyle. They spent several days touring the city and the restored ruins of the Ancient Mayans. Having studied the culture and civilization of the Mayans during the fall seminar, students were better able to appreciate the ruins, to be intrigued by them, and even to be challenged to climb some of them.

Though communicating with the native Mexicans was awkward at first, by the end of their stay, students had met many people, including some from countries other than Mexico, and had learned to bargain with the merchants at the market.

In an unforgettable experience, students witnessed a bullfight featuring two female matadores. Though far from being enjoyable, it was still a unique event for most of the students.

Basking in the sun by the pool at their hotel enabled these Winternational students to return to the campus with glorious tans in the middle of January! Students also returned with a greater appreciation for the American lifestyle, as well as with a greater respect for different ways of life.

Looking Back On 1981

Economy Gets The Ax

The nation's economy, a black-hooded executioner to any administration, didn't spare the confident Reagan conservative government its headaches, despite hard fought battles and the first phase of a tax cut.

While inflation crept slowly down toward the end of the year, recession rushed to the forefront of national attention. The U.S. auto industry reported drastic drops in sales, and the housing market came to an almost dead halt.

Unemployment reached new post-war highs, with Michigan and Alabama leading the way with jobless rates in excess of ten percent. The administration grudgingly admitted the seriousness of the recession during midyear, but said such results were necessary to retard inflation.

Despite the depressing reports, Reagan was able to win several key budget battles on Capitol Hill with the biggest on July 31, when Congress passed his tax cut package. The almost 20-year-old commitment to "Great Society" programs was all but abandoned with some social programs being eliminated and many others scaled down.

The budget cuts have had serious effects on state and local economies with such cherished programs as Guaranteed Student Loans and other federal aid to education feeling the ax. Additionally, reduced federal aid to states and cities has seriously impaired the recovery efforts of such cities as New York and Detroit, where unemployment, particularly among young blacks, is high.

Worse yet, the federal deficit, the reduction of which was a primary Reagan goal, continued heading toward an all-time high despite all the belt-tightening in Washington.

The Administration remains committed and has said the economy will improve significantly by middle to late 1982.

Children Killed In Atlanta

Atlanta was an international dateline in early 1981, as young blacks disappeared from the city's streets at sickeningly shortened intervals. There were bodies discovered later in rivers and wooded lots. The mysterious series of murders began almost unnoticed in the summer of 1979 and reached 28 as the city's poor black neighborhoods feared a racial conspiracy.

The tensions subsided in June 1981 with the arrest of Wayne Bertran Williams, a 23 year-old free-lance photographer and with an apparent halt in the killings.

On February 27, 1982, Williams was convicted of murdering Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, and Nathaniel Cater, 27. He was sentenced to serve two life terms in prison.

Labeling Williams a "mass murderer" and blaming him for 21 slayings beyond the two he was convicted of, Atlanta police disbanded a special task force formed in July, 1980.

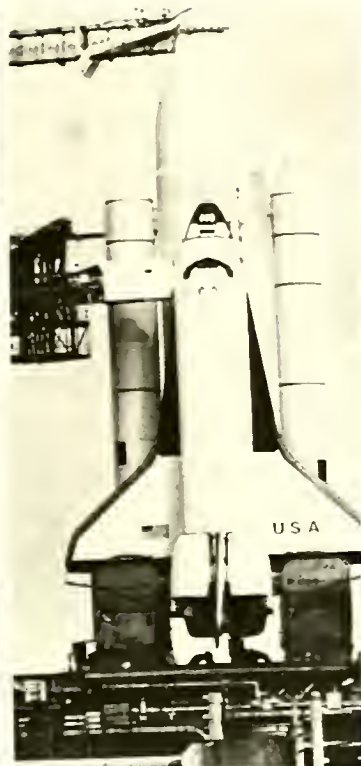

Columbia Gives Space Program A Lift

The nation that put men on the moon got back into the business of space exploration this year.

Astronauts John Young and Robert Crippen became the first Americans in six years to travel in space on April 12, when the space shuttle Columbia lifted off from Cape Canaveral, Florida. It was a scene reminiscent of the spectacular launchings of other years. But the Columbia is a craft designed to take off from and to return to earth many times.

The first return of this fixedwing space vehicle came off flawlessly fifty-four and one-half hours later at Edwards Air Force Base in California as thousands cheered.

Air Traffic Controllers Fired

Ronald Reagan's first showdown came against a union that had endorsed him for President — a union of workers whose paychecks and lifestyles resembled those of management more than rank-and-file positions.

The 12,000 members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers walked off the job on August 3. They wanted more money, but they also raised a new issue on labor relations — the exceptional stress they said was a part of their working life.

Reagan's response to the illegal strike was to give the controllers 24 hours to return to work and to fire all those who didn't show up the following day. Reagan's tough stand never cracked. The controllers, isolated from the mainstream of U.S. labor, found little public support.

The union was later decertified by the National Labor Relations Board.

Hostages Return To America

One of the largest and most nerve-wrecking non-war dramas in American history came to an end January 20 when 52 Americans held hostage in Iran flew to freedom ending 444 days in captivity.

The hostage situation had bounced the Carter Administration from wall to wall for more than a year and included a disastrous attempt to free the hostages by force. Eight servicemen were killed April 25 when a helicopter collided with an aircraft. The attempt sparked protest in Tehran, criticism in the U.S., and resulted in the resignation of Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

The breakthrough, negotiated by Warren Christopher came, and the welcome home was tumultuous. The Americans returned to the U.S. amid flags, heart-warming signs, and streams of symbolic yellow ribbons.

Reagan Shot

A man described as "wandering, aimless and irresponsible" stunned the nation and the world at 2:25 P.M., March 30, when he fired a barrage of shots resulting in wounds to President Reagan, his press secretary James Brady, a Secret Serviceman, and a Washington policeman.

Reagan was instantly pushed into his Limousine, but not until after he had been hit by a bullet in the side below his left arm.

The 70-year-old President underwent 2 hours of surgery and spent 12 days in the hospital.

Brady's wounds were more serious. He was shot in the head, and although was considered to be near death at one point, he fought back and left the hospital November 23, partially paralyzed.

Arrested on the spot and charged in the attempted killings was John W. Hinckley Jr., 25.

A Symbol Of Peace ... Assassinated

President Anwar Sadat, a symbol of peace in the Middle East after his historic visit to Israel and participation in the Camp David Accords, was gunned down by assassins marching in a military parade he was viewing.

Former Presidents Jimmy Carter, Gerald Ford and Richard Nixon accompanied Secretary of State Alexander Haig to the funeral and spoke of the loss of a "great world leader."

During the late seventies, Sadat began long, hard efforts at making peace with Israel and in 1977 — in what historians termed the most courageous act of a statesman in this century — Sadat went to Israel and met many of his former enemies, an act which marked the first step on the road to Camp David and the accords signed by himself, Carter, and Menahem Begin.

Female Receives Post

In this nation's history, 102 men have served as Supreme Court Justices. On September 25, a 51 year-old appeals court judge from Arizona became the first woman to sit on the nation's highest court.

President Reagan had promised to put a woman on the court during the '80 campaign. He quickly got a chance to fulfill his pledge. When Justice Potter Stewart announced his retirement on July 7, Reagan named Sandra Day O'Connor to the post.

O'Connor — First female Superior Court Judge

The Teacher Education Program at Wingate College again witnessed an expansion during its third year in existence. The college placed sixteen student teachers during the fall semester and twenty-six student teachers during the spring semester in nearby Union County and Monroe City Schools.

These student teachers practiced the art of teaching in three grade levels of public education: Early Education (K-3), Intermediate (4-9), and Secondary. On the secondary level, student teachers taught in the academic areas of art, history, math, and music.

Student teaching culminates the educational process begun early in the sophomore year for those interested in pursuing education as a career goal. Such sophomores study education-psychology courses which enable them to acquire field experience by observing and assisting teachers in nearby schools. This actual experience sometimes reinforces or changes a student's career choice.

As juniors, these potential teachers prepare to teach various subjects on specific grade levels. Prior to student teaching during the last semester of the senior year, these would-be teachers study methods of teaching in their educational methods classes.

A student teacher is then assigned to a Cooperating Teacher in an adjacent school. Here the student teacher observes, assists, and eventually teaches the class. A College Supervisor periodically visits and observes the student teacher in action in the classroom.

Before receiving their credentials from the state of North Carolina as being certified teachers, these students must demonstrate their competency by earning specific scores on the National Teachers Examination.

In support of our Teacher Education Program, numerous books have been added to the shelves of our main library and also to the juvenile collection. This past fall semester, the Bivens Teacher Materials Center in the library was dedicated and has greatly been utilized by students. It houses North Carolina state approved textbooks, state curriculum materials, and audio-visual materials and equipment.

Dr. Bobby Bell serves as the Chairman of the Division of Education and Social Sciences and is supported by a Teacher Education Committee, composed of college faculty and public educators.

Next year, Wingate College will be able to prepare educators in the additional academic areas of science and reading.

Approximately fifty students have been accepted this year for the Teacher Education Program.

"Agatha Christie Made Me Do It"

The first play of the second semester, performed by the Gate Playhouse Theatre Company, was a comical mystery play in three acts. The play by Eddie Cope, "Agatha Christie Made Me Do It," was staged three consecutive nights in February and provided much relaxation and entertainment for all who went to see it.

Other plays performed second semester included "The Square Root of Love," staged in mid-March, and "Breaking Up Is Hard To Do," performed the weekend of April fourth.

PRESIDENT CORTS

In sharing some of the future plans, goals, and purposes of Wingate College, Dr. Thomas Corts has stated that, "We are hoping to see Wingate grow in quality rather than in quantity." He hopes to see Wingate College remain basically the same size and continue to provide for students a special experience that can be found only at a small college.

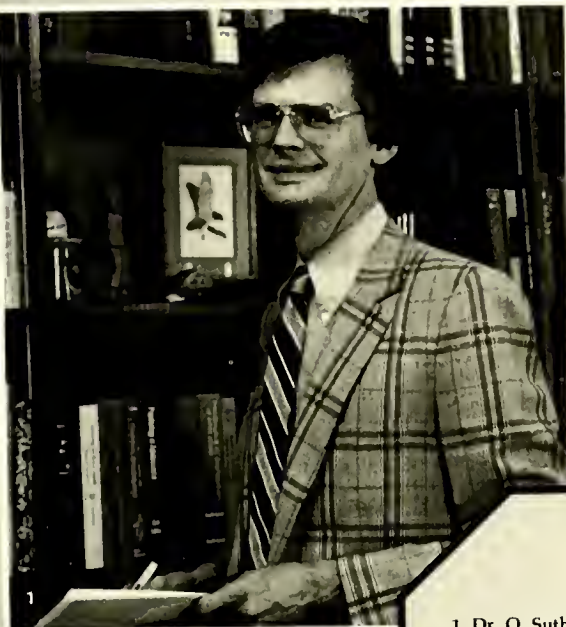

Dr. Corts looks upon the small college as a community or group enterprise. In accepting students to the institution, admissions counselors seek those students who can most effectively serve the college. As Dr. Corts has commented, "Wingate is not for everyone; the goal is to try to find students who will benefit from Wingate the most. Hopefully, a student contributes to what Wingate is rather than benefits from it."

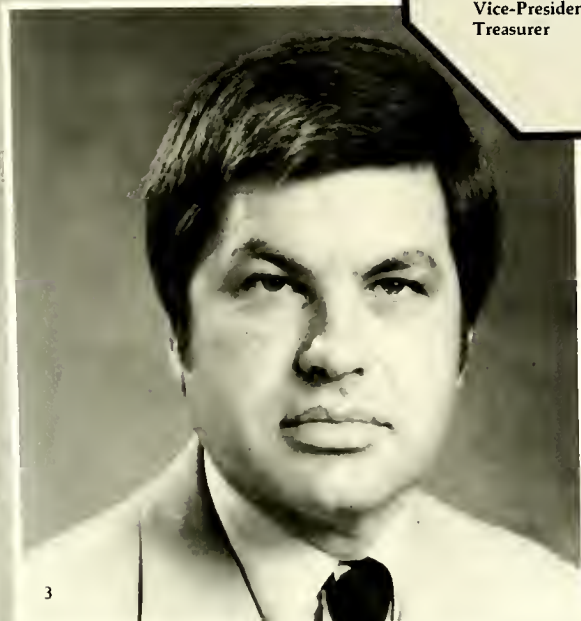

Bernard

Dr. Corts, who holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Georgetown College, a Master of Arts degree and Doctor of Philosophy degree from Indiana University, has commented concerning his own college career that, "A large university is good for graduate work, but I wouldn't take anything for my small college experience." Dr. Corts' current goal is to encourage student world awareness.

There's no telling what you'll see on the way home from Wingate!

Jill Traywick, a junior from Marshville, enjoys a dance after being crowned the 1981 Homecoming Queen. The Homecoming festivities were exciting and memorable.

North Carolina

On September 26, 1981, senior Tom Mundy was awarded the AAU title of Mr. North Carolina. The event was held in Greensboro, N.C. Mundy's muscular build allowed him to finish ahead of twenty-five competitors and take home the number one trophy. Next September Mundy will attempt to capture the Mr. America title.

An unexpected sight on the campus of Wingate College was the visit of two lion cubs. Their owners, Roger Davis and Kenny Braswell, were delighted with the response the cubs received on campus.

Sophomores

The sophomore class under the willing guidance of Trip Gault as President, Rickey Ashby as Vice-President, and Secretary-Treasurer Cindy Vonnannon, was led in numerous activities. The spirit of the sophomore class was expressed at the Fall Festival with the winning of the bulldog.

Other activities sponsored by the sophomore class included a class trip, candy kiss sale, doughnut sale, and a campus road race.

Trip Gault said, "I have really enjoyed being the sophomore class president and especially working with Rick and Cindy, and the class as a whole."

Student Government Association

SGA President

"The ultimate concern of any student government association is to effectively represent the students. For a responsibility of this nature to be upheld requires much work and dedication from the student leaders of the college. I have been fortunate enough to have worked with students possessing this desire.

"For this responsibility to be fulfilled, it takes, above all, the willingness and support of the student body. It is that willingness and support that has set apart this year from those of the past."

Certainly one of the most important organizations at Wingate, the APB, (a branch of the Student Government), coordinates numerous events and activities on campus during the school year. These events ranged from award-winning movies, such as "Kramer vs. Kramer" and Alfred Hitchcock's thriller "Psycho" to dances for Orientation, Homecoming, Halloween, and the Madrigal/Christmas Dance.

Many APB activities were not only fun but also educational. During September and October, the APB sponsored mini "leisure learning" courses. With these courses, students could learn anything from money management to calligraphy with shag dancing and dulcimer playing in between.

Among the other APB sponsored events are the frequent and entertaining coffee houses; concerts by visiting bands; football — ping-pong — pinball tournaments, and the "build-your-own sundae" extravaganza.

Most important, however, are the very special events which the APB successfully coordinates, such as Parents' Day, a day when we all can share our experiences with parents whom most of us haven't seen for some time.

Cheerleaders

Cindy Bivens — Head Cheerleader

This year's Wingate cheerleading squad, led by Cindy Bivens, held its first cheerleading clinic for all of the area high schools. They hope to make this an annual event. The squad held this clinic to help raise money for new uniforms.

Other activities of the cheerleaders include making "good luck" signs and giving parties for winning teams for their hard work.

During the fall, the squad cheers at soccer and volleyball games. During the winter season, they cheer the Bulldogs toward victory at the men's and women's basketball games.

Adviser of the squad, Judy Childers says, "The squad puts about two million hours of practicing and hard work into their cheering."

"W" Club

The "W" Club is a unique club as it is composed of those athletes outstanding in intercollegiate sports. It exists primarily to promote spirit and recognize those various athletic teams representing Wingate College.

Boasting one of the largest club participations on campus, the "W" Club mainly meets its financial needs by sponsoring concessions for all sports activities. This helps the club meet its annual goal of purchasing for Wingate College special gifts to help outstanding sports programs that already exist. Such recent gifts have been a portable spectator bleacher and trophy cases.

The Penthouse Forensics team, also known as the debate squad, had another fabulous year. The group of young men and women competed against major universities such as U.C.L.A., University of Pennsylvania, Vanderbilt University, and has won 64% of the nation's competitions to place Wingate College at the number 12 position in the nation as of mid-February.

The debate team competes against other schools in two against two events. They have one major topic each semester to debate the pros and cons. First semester the topic was "Whether Undocumented Aliens Are Seriously Detrimental to the United States." The second semester topic was "Whether the American Judicial System Over Emphasizes the Right of the Accused."

As of mid-February, the squad had five tournaments. The first competition, held at Appalachian State University, awarded Wingate with a third place finish. This team consisted of team members Bob Hoover and Libby Carpenter. The second competition, held at Villanova University in Philadelphia, Penn., found Hoover and Carpenter in first place and Rick Hahn and Lois Marlow in third place at the end of the events.

The third competition was held at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn. Peggy Beach and George Fox were awarded a fourth place finish. Finally, traveling to Towson University in Baltimore, Maryland, Wingate proudly captured first and second place with teams Hoover and Carpenter, and Beach and Fox, respectively.

The first tournament of the second semester was held at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. It found Wingate taking three of the top four places. In second place were Hoover and Carpenter; in third place were Ted Goslen and Rick Hahn, and in fourth place were Fox and Beach.

Coach Don Brownlee remarked, "It has really been a joy to work with some of America's brightest debaters." He went on to say, "The national ranking is a true measure of the quality and achievement of these Wingate students."

The staff of the 1981-82 Triangle, the Wingate College campus newspaper, planned and prepared ten issues for the academic year. The issues were released bi-monthly with the off-week supplement, successor of the SGA newsletter, falling between issues.

The primary goal of the newspaper staff was to report the events of the college and surrounding community, promote development and expression of opinions, and to help enrich the college community as a valuable part of the campus communication system.

The full Triangle staff had about twenty-five members.

The Gate

This year's Gate staff, in an effort to create the best possible yearbook here at Wingate College spent numerous hours planning, revising, and perfecting the 1982 annual.

After successfully meeting three deadlines, the staff held deadlines parties to maintain morale. Aside from these parties the group had a Christmas party and participated in fund raising projects. These projects ranged from "Gobble Grams" to selling Wingate shirts. With the money raised from the projects, the staff enjoyed a week-end excursion to Myrtle Beach.

The planning for this year's Gate began in early April of 1981 and didn't conclude until mid-April of 1982, when the books were delivered.

Coach Jerry Sutton commented on this year's team, "I feel that our program is going forward and not standing still." He went on to say, "Although our win/loss record was not very good, we had the ability to win more games." Sutton also stated that the performance of the recruited freshmen gave the team a definite boost.

"Soccer is relatively young in North Carolina, and most of our players come from surrounding and northern states," said Sutton. He continued saying that he expected to take four or five more years to produce a really strong soccer program.

"Overall," Sutton replied, "I was very satisfied with the program. With co-captains like Spencer Seay and Barry Williams, and seniors like John Eichler, Terry Rhoney and Kevin Ward, we improved greatly."

The 1981 season was a good season, playing in the middle of the conference and district, with a record of 9-9. Dr. Murray, coach of the men's team, said he "expected to be at the top in the 1982 season." There were many returning members, including two seniors, Sam Elkins and Danny Vaughan. The team was also fortunate enough to return five sophomores and to recruit one freshman. The season ended April 19 with the NAIA District Tournament. With all the experience of the squad, the 1982 Bulldogs had a "great season."

Wingate hosted the Carolina Conference Tournament this year which proved a big financial success. Unfortunately, the Lady Bulldogs lost their first match of the tournament with only two wins out of the five games played. Freshman Jackie Ellis was named to the All Tournament team.

Joan Roberts commented, "This year's team consisted of one junior, four sophomores, and five freshmen. Because of such a young team, we expect many more successful seasons in the future. I was very pleased with this year's team and very proud of their winning record. To me, this year's team was very successful."

The coach of the Wingate Bulldogs' Basketball team, Wayne Shadrick said, "At this point in the season the players are performing well and up to my expectations." After thirteen games the team showed only a 5-8 winning percentage, 2-5 in the conference, and 4-7 in the District Twenty-Six competition.

The Bulldogs returned several key players this year and signed many important freshmen to the squad. These players have been under the guidance of senior leaders Andrea McCloud and Larry Powell, who are both all-conference performers.

The highlight of the Bulldogs' schedule was the WBTB Carolina Classic.

This marks the second year that the Bulldogs have been classified as an NAIA and Carolina Conference team.

The Bulldogs finished the "1980-81 season with an overwhelming performance," said Coach Shadrick. He went on to say, "The season ended with a two point loss that stopped the team from taking a trip to the NAIA District Twenty-Six Championship. All the same though, it gave the team great determination for the 1981-82 season."

The Lady Bulldogs are honored with two nationally ranked players. Dianna Monroe, leading scorer for the Bulldogs, is ranked second in the nation in scoring. Harriett Suber, who averages 12.5 points a game and leads in rebounding, is in the top three in the nation in field goals.

Monroe's reaction to her ranking was, "It feels good just to be ranked in the nation. It is a great honor." She also holds first standing in the Carolina Conference and District in scoring with a 27.2% average per game. This outstanding player averages a remarkable 68% free throw and 55.5% field goals. She holds the conference tournament scoring record of 38 points in a game set her freshman year.

Women's Basketball

Coach Johnny Jacumin

"You've come a long way, baby!" is the perfect slogan for Wingate's Women's Basketball team. They have climbed from their creation four years ago to being second in the conference and in the NAIA District 26. They dominated the Carolina Conference statistically by leading in team and individual scoring and rebounding.

Johnny Jacumin, coach of the Lady Bulldogs for the second year, stated that their success can be attributed to the fact "that everyone plays and can play well. We have a lot of very good people."

The team's starting lineup is made up of two freshmen, one sophomore, and two juniors, but all the members are used regularly. The entire team contains two seniors, two juniors, five sophomores, and three freshmen. Lyndia Rushing and Ann Lee are the two seniors who have been with the team since it began four years ago. Both are very good scorers and ball handlers and will be missed next year.

Jacumin hopes for next year's squad to be even greater. "We will be much stronger next year, more experienced. Recruiting looks good because we are winning more now."

"With a second place finish in the Carolina's Conference Tournament last year and a third place finish in the District, the performances and potential for this upcoming year's team look very good, even though our final record was 14-22.

"The age and experience of our returning players, along with upcoming freshmen, should prove to be a positive influence. I am looking forward to our first winning season," commented Coach Mike McEachern.

Assistant Coach Bill Nash

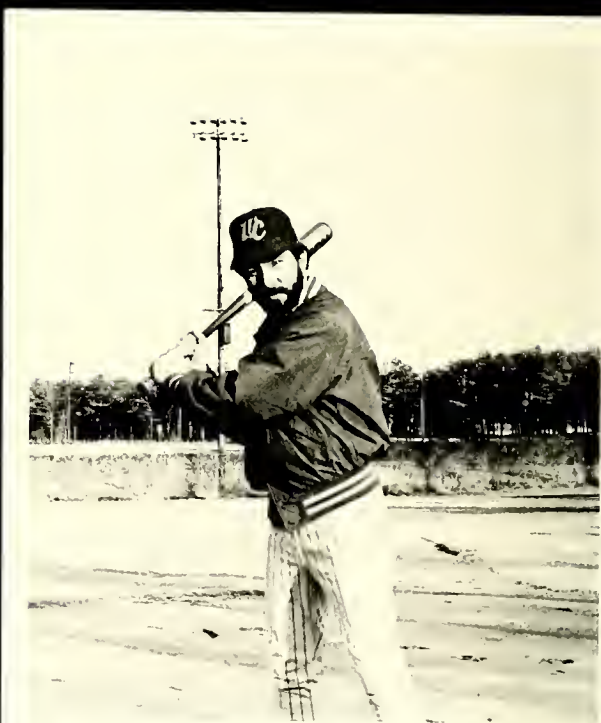

"I think we're going to have a very good team this year," stated Assistant Coach Bill Nash. This year's team returned many players from last year's squad including all-conference and all-American players, Jeff Waisner, Jeff Tuttle, Jim Morris, and Pat Warren.

The Bulldogs face one of the toughest schedules they have ever had. This schedule includes teams like Wake Forrest University, Florida State University, as well as conference competition.

ALMA MATER

In the land of Carolina
Neath the skies so blue,
Stands our noble Alma Mater
Glorious to view:

Chorus:

Lift the Chorus, speed it onward,
Loud the praise relate,
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater
Hail! all Hail! Wingate!

Far and wide her sons and daughters
Bear the gold and blue,
Proudly rally round her banner,
Hail! Wingate to you!

The Gate, the student yearbook of Wingate College, is published by the Gate staff, a group of students dedicated to printing the major accounts of the 1981-1982 school year. The yearbook is produced in the Purser Activity Suite of the Dickson-Palmer Center, Wingate College, Wingate, North Carolina, 28174.

Press run for the 1982 Gate was 1700 books with 200 pages. The yearbook was printed using offset lithography by Josten's/American Yearbook Company of Clarksville, Tennessee. The binding is Smythe sewn, rounded and backed, with head and footbands. Trim size is 8½ x 11. Paper stock is 80 pound glossy enamel. Endsheets are Gold Dust #286.

Artwork includes all black ink drawings by staff member Lisa Wilber included on the following pages: 6, 7, 13, 44, 126, 130, 132, 133, 137, 138, 139, 143, 145, 158, 167, 185.

Class portraits, Who's Who prints and May Court were taken by Henry L. Montgomery and members of Lee's Studio of Lancaster, South Carolina.

Spot color is done using Tempo and processed inks. Included are Tempo 130. Process colors include gray and black.

Special effects include duotones, halftone overprinted on spot color backgrounds, posterization, and die cut endsheets.

Body copy is 10 point Palatino with bold and italic emphasis faces. Captions are set in 8 point Palatino. Subheadlines are set in 12 point to 18 point Garamond bold. Page numbers are 10 point Palatino. Photo credits are 8 point Palatino bold italic. Headlines vary in style and size from page to page.

... and the countless others without whom this yearbook could not have been made!

Plans and provisions for this year's edition of THE GATE were initially begun on a sunny day in April when I was first informed that I had been named editor. They culminated ten months later on a rainy day in February when the final deadline was met.

During this long process of drawing layouts, cropping pictures, typing body copy, and just simply thinking, untold hours were spent.

The spirit and effort put forth on this yearbook was extraordinary. Pictures were taken and sometimes retaken and as Chip knows, I often thought he would scream when I ripped up a print and sent him back to the darkroom one more time. Likewise, copy was written and rewritten and checked a minimum of three times in order to produce a top-quality yearbook for Wingate College.

But for all the work, the wonderful feeling of accomplishment is the ultimate appreciation for a group of people who devoted their efforts to the production of the 44th volume of The Gate. However a greater expression of my gratitude is due Debra, Rachel, Lorrie, Chip, Matt, Lisa, Delores, Joni, and Pete, who put forth that extra hour or two needed to complete this edition. It stands as a singular monument to their efforts and to those staff members who devoted their time during fall and spring semesters.

The contents of this book relate the idea of looking back over our past and looking forward to our new beginning. Whether you are a freshman, a recent graduate, a faculty or staff member, or just someone who happens to open this book, let us take care to remember a year of growth and change at Wingate College, and recall that our passage through this time allows us, through this book, TO LOOK BACK ON, what was once, A NEW BEGINNING.
